

ABSTRACT

The contents of a communicated electronic mail are certificated, and the certification of a transaction contents carried out by the electronic mail is sufficiently secured. A transmitted electronic mail is transmitted to a destination by way of the communication contents certification apparatus, and the transmitted electronic mail is stored in a communication contents storage means when it is transmitted by means of the communication contents certification apparatus.